

Considering Consequences

Things that seem small can have big consequences for others.

For example, people need to know your availability along with how and when to contact you. Look at the diagram below to see what happens if you keep people in the loop, and if you don't.

Ownership Responsibility Accountability

If you communicate your availability, these are the consequences

Excuses Denial Blame

If you don't communicate your availability, these are the consequences

Things that seem small can have big consequences for others
How are you inconveniencing your colleagues / customers?
What can you do differently for ease of working together?
