Application to record 'Riseley Common Lane' as a restricted byway

1. Application and application map

The application is to record an unnamed highway as a restricted byway from the turning on the minor road known as the Devil's Highway near Barossa Farm marked at point A on the map below (SU73626324), south-west and then south-south-west along an enclosed unsealed lane for a distance of 272 metres, to the turning on Mill Lane at point B (SU73516300).

Scale: 1:3,600 (when printed A4)

Application route is marked

2. General notes

No historical indication has been found of a name for the claimed highway: for the purposes of this claim, the highway has been referred to as 'Riseley Common Lane'. In this analysis, the road at the north-east end of Riseley Common Lane at point A is referred to as The Devil's Highway (formerly the Roman road from London to Bath), and the road at the south-west end at point B is referred to as Mill Lane.

Riseley Common Land was, prior to inclosure in 1860, an unenclosed track across the north-east corner of Riseley Common, generally contiguous with the present claimed way.

Points have been awarded to each piece of evidence in relation to the claimed route: these points have been calculated according to the guidance in Rights of Way: Restoring the Record<sup>1</sup>.
